Opera in the Kitchen: Women and their Telephones

"Her high notes were thrilling, her diction clear, and her concentration never wavered as she skillfully conveyed the meaning of each song... she is a fine singing actress whose expressivity always seems to come from within..." The New York Concert Review (about Deborah Lifton, the guest performer in these Kitchen Theatre's upcoming LA VOIX HUMAINE)

Ithaca, NY: Enjoy an evening of opera at the Kitchen Theatre. Women and Their Telephones begins with Brad Hougham and Amanda DeMaris in THE TELEPHONE by Gian Carlo Menotti, then Deborah Lifton takes the stage with the deeply dramatic solo turn LA VOIX HUMAINE by François Poulenc. Four performances will be gracing the Kitchen Theatre stage March 17, 18, 20, and 21.

Ithaca College music faculty members Brad Hougham and Amanda DeMaris will start the evening off with THE TELEPHONE. Ben (Hougham) has come to Lucy's (DeMaris) apartment to propose, if only he could keep her attention long enough between an endless series of telephone calls. Written in 1947, THE TELEPHONE is a comic love story for two plus telephone.

Performed by Deborah Lifton, LA VOIX HUMAINE is a one-act solo opera with music by Francis Poulenc and text by Jean Cocteau. It follows the emotional phone conversation of a young woman in 1950s Paris with her lover of five years who is about to marry another woman. KTC's intimate 73-seat space is the perfect setting for this gripping tale.

Women and Their Telephones was conceived by director David Lefkovich. Although the Kitchen has produced many musicals and operettas, this will be the first time opera will be sung in the Kitchen. Director David Lefkovich and Artistic Director Rachel Lampert are looking forward to a new experience for Kitchen Theatre goes. "I love having singing in the Kitchen, and the voices in this production are going to be extraordinary. What an exciting evening of music and theater this is going to be," says Artistic Director, Rachel Lampert.

Soprano Deborah Lifton is a versatile singer who holds degrees in music from the University of Michigan and the Manhattan School of Music and has taught at New York University and Syracuse University. She is currently an Assistant Professor of Voice at Ithaca College. Lifton has been heard on WQXR and was featured in Young Opera, a new series on PBS.org. She has won the David Adams Song Competition and is a 2007 Joy in Singing Foundation Award recipient. Lifton has appeared with Mercury Opera Rochester, The Natchez Opera Festival, The Ash Lawn-Highland Festival, The Aspen Music Festival, The Bronx Opera
